

Tech FM Station To Discontinue Broadcasting Until Fall Semester

With the end of the academic year rapidly approaching, the Inter College Radio Network, jointly operated by Clarkson College and the State University College at Potsdam, has suspended broadcasting operations until the fall.

The final shutdown was made Sunday at 12:00 midnight when WTSC-FM, Clarkson's non-commercial educational station signed off the air.

Composed of two carrier current AM stations and WTSC-FM, the network has rapidly expanded its facilities and services during the past year.

WTSC-FM went on the air last fall as the first non-commercial FM station in Northern New York State. Broadcasting 48 hours a week under student supervision, WTSC-FM programs high-quality music, frequently featuring concerts of the Crane School of Music.

In addition to WTSC-FM, the two carrier current stations, WNTC and WCCT, enable the network to service all dormitories of both College campuses as well as the Potsdam community.

The Inter College Radio Network will return to the air in September with the beginning of the fall semester.
